All MSc and MRes courses end with a dissertation module taken after the taught modules are completed. This starts in September.

All dates may be subject to change and will be confirmed with students closer to September. Depending on student numbers some modules may change to DL only or offer multiple study visits during the teaching week of the module to allow as many students as possible to be able to attend.

Each module is usually 15 credits and will typically run for 8 weeks from the module start date. The exception to this is in the very first module some pre-recorded lectures may be made available the week prior to the start date and the Applied Research Design module is a year-long module taken in the year prior to your dissertation module. It has a dedicated teaching week which can be taken on-site or via DL in May.
